8 Mr Willy Wonka's Factory

Warm up

Read these sentences on chocolates. Tick the ones that are true and cross out the one that is not. You can look up the information.

- Chocolate comes from a fruit tree; it is made from a seed.
- In the past, chocolate was had as a bitter drink called xocoatl.
- Among all countries, India eats the most chocolates.
- In the past, people used chocolate like money.
- Chocolates are not meant for pets.

Let's read about a young boy, Charlie Bucket, who loves chocolate and is fascinated by Wonka's Chocolate Factory.

In the evenings, after he had finished his supper of watery cabbage soup, Charlie always went into the room of his four grandparents to listen to their stories, and then afterwards to say good night.

Every one of these old people was over ninety. They were as shrivelled as prunes, and as bony as skeletons, and throughout the day, until Charlie made his appearance, they lay huddled in their one bed, two at either end, with nightcaps on to keep their heads warm, dozing the time away with nothing to do. But as soon as they heard the door opening, and heard Charlie's voice saying, 'Good evening, Grandpa Joe and Grandma Josephine, and Grandpa George and Grandma Georgina,' then all four of them would suddenly sit up, and their wrinkled faces would light up with smiles of pleasure – and the talking would begin.

What comparison (similes) does the author use to tell us what Charlie's grandparents looked like?

What contrast does the author use to show how much Charlie's grandparents loved him?

supper: the last meal of the day, smaller and less formal than dinner shrivelled: dried, wrinkled and thin or small prunes: dried plums bony: so thin that the bones can be seen under the skin appearance: the fact of somebody or something arriving huddled: gathered closely together, usually because of cold or fear dozing: sleeping lightly wrinkled: having lines or folds on your skin as you get older

For they loved this little boy, and his evening visits were something that they looked forward to all day long. Often, Charlie's mother and father would come in as well, and stand by the door, listening to the stories that the old people told.

One evening, when Charlie went in to see his grandparents, he said to them, 'Is it really true that Wonka's Chocolate Factory is the biggest in the world?'

'True?' cried all four of them at once. 'Of course it's true! Good heavens, didn't you know that? It's about fifty times as big as any other!'

'And is Mr Willy Wonka really the cleverest chocolate maker in the world?'

'My dear boy,' said Grandpa Joe, 'Mr Willy Wonka is the most amazing, the most fantastic, the most extraordinary chocolate maker the world has ever seen! He's a magician with chocolate! You mean to say I've never told you about Mr Willy Wonka and his factory?'

'Never,' answered little Charlie. 'Will you tell me now, Grandpa Joe, please?'

'I certainly will. Sit down beside me on the bed, my dear, and listen carefully.'

Grandpa Joe was ninety-six and a half. He was delicate and weak, and throughout the day spoke very little. But in the evenings, when Charlie, his beloved grandson, was in the room, he seemed in some marvellous way to grow quite young again. All his tiredness fell away from him, and he became as eager and excited as a young boy.

good heavens: said to express surprise or to emphasize that you agree or disagree with someone extraordinary: not normal or ordinary; greater or better than usual beloved: loved very much

'Mr Willy Wonka,' said Grandpa Joe, 'has himself invented more than two hundred new kinds of chocolate bars, each with a different centre, each far sweeter and creamier and more delicious than anything the other chocolate factories can make!'

Which word means to create or design something new?

'Perfectly true!' cried Grandma Josephine. 'And he sends them to all the four corners of the earth! Isn't that so, Grandpa Joe?'

'It is, my dear, it is. But it isn't only chocolate bars that he makes. Oh, dear me, no! He has some really fantastic inventions up his sleeve! Did you know that he's invented a way of making chocolate ice cream so that it stays cold for hours and hours without being in the refrigerator? You can even leave it lying in the sun all morning on a hot day and it won't go runny!'

'But that's impossible!' said little Charlie, staring at his grandfather.

'Of course it's impossible!' cried Grandpa Joe. 'It's completely absurd! But Mr Willy Wonka has done it!'

Which word is the opposite (antonym) of 'reasonable'?

'Quite right!' the others agreed, nodding their heads. 'Mr Wonka has done it.'

'Mr Willy Wonka can make sweets that change colour every ten seconds as you suck them,' Grandpa Joe went on, 'and sugar balloons that you can blow up to enormous sizes before you pop them and gobble them up. And, by a most secret method, he can make lovely blue birds' eggs with black spots on them, and when you put one of these in your mouth, it gradually gets smaller and smaller until suddenly there is nothing left except a tiny little pink sugary baby bird sitting on the tip of your tongue.'

Grandpa Joe paused. 'It makes my mouth water just thinking about it,' he said.

'Mine, too,' said little Charlie.

Roald Dahl (1916–1990) was born in Cardiff, Wales. He wrote many novels and short stories, both for children and adults. His stories for children, such as Charlie and the Chocolate Factory and Matilda, continue to be popular and are known for their unique sense of humour and unexpected endings. This particular extract is from Charlie and the Chocolate Factory.

all the four corners of the earth: many different parts of the world up his sleeve: kept hidden for later use refrigerator: fridge runny: producing a lot of liquid once it starts melting pop: to burst something or make something burst with a short sudden and loud sound gobble: to eat something very fast gradually: slowly, over a long period of time mouth water: make one eager for some sort of food, especially because of its appearance or smell

In this section, we will:
- remember details about the story.
- learn how to analyse the structure of the story.

(C-2.1, C-2.2)

Make connections

Map the story

Answer the following questions based on the story.

1. Good writers use a technique called Show, don't tell. They tell a story using sensory descriptions that include touch, sight, taste, sound and smell. Using this technique helps paint a picture of the scene for the reader. Pick out the details from the story that you can 'sense' or 'feel'. One has been done as an example.

   The same description can appeal to two senses – for example, 'shrivelled as prunes' tells us how the wrinkled faces looked (sight) and tells us how they would feel if we touched them (touch).

Senses	Sensory details
Sight	shrivelled as prunes
Taste
Touch	shrivelled as prunes
Sound

2. Major characters play the most important roles. List the major and minor characters in the story.

Deep dive

Answer the following questions with reference to context.

1. Grandpa Joe was ninety-six and a half. He was delicate and weak, and throughout the day he spoke very little. But in the evenings, when Charlie, his beloved grandson, was in the room, he seemed in some marvellous way to grow quite young again.

RECALL

a. Who were the other members in Charlie's family apart from Grandpa Joe?

INFER

b. Which words in the sentences given above mean the opposite of 'strong'?

ANALYSE

c. Why do you think Grandpa Joe and the others became so lively when Charlie visited them in the evenings?

2. 'Of course it's impossible!' cried Grandpa Joe. 'It's completely absurd! But Mr Willy Wonka has done it!'

RECALL	INFER	ANALYSE
a. What had Mr Willy Wonka done that was 'completely absurd'? b. What were some of the other things Mr Willy Wonka could do?	c. Why do you think Grandpa Joe found what Mr Willy Wonka had done to be 'completely absurd'?	d. Based on your reading of the text, what do you think about Willy Wonka's factory and inventions? Is it possible to do what he has done?

Read, reflect and write

1. How does the author show us that Charlie and his family were not very well off?
2. How does the chapter end? Does it make you want to read the book? Explain your answer.

Integrate

In the story we read that Charlie's family only had watery cabbage soup for dinner. Even though there is enough food on the planet, 1 in 10 people go to bed hungry every night. One of the main reasons for this is food wastage. People buy more than they need, serve more than they need and a lot of food is thrown away. Have a class discussion on what you can do to prevent food waste. Draw up a pledge and sign it. Include things you will and will not do.

No food waste

Word wall

In this section, we will:
- learn about words used to describe taste.
- learn about the different tints and shades of colours. (C-4.1, 4.2)

Words to describe taste

Grandpa Joe used the words sweeter, creamier and delicious to describe the taste of the chocolate bars Willy Wonka had invented.

Unscramble the letters to get words that describe the way things taste.

SEECHY	LABHER	TGANY	PPREPEY
SYTRICU	EASYGR	TYMIN	CSPYI

Use any five of them in sentences of your own.

Shades of colours

Blue, black and pink are just a few colours Mr Wonka uses in his chocolate factory. There are many tints and shades of a single colour.

Sort out the colour shades into the right columns.

sky	navy	emerald	cherry	lemon	mustard
mint	olive	honey	crimson	indigo	brick

Red	Yellow	Blue	Green

Find shades for these other colours too: pink, orange, brown and black. Use them in your writing.

Grammar time

In this section, we will:
- learn about adverbs of degree.
(C-3.4)

Adverbs of degree

Read these sentences.

- 'Mr Willy Wonka is the most extraordinary chocolate maker the world has ever seen!'
- He was delicate and weak, and throughout the day spoke very little.
- When Charlie was in the room, Grandpa Joe seemed to grow quite young again.

An adverb is a word that qualifies or modifies a verb, an adjective or another adverb.

The words most, very and quite are adverbs of degree.

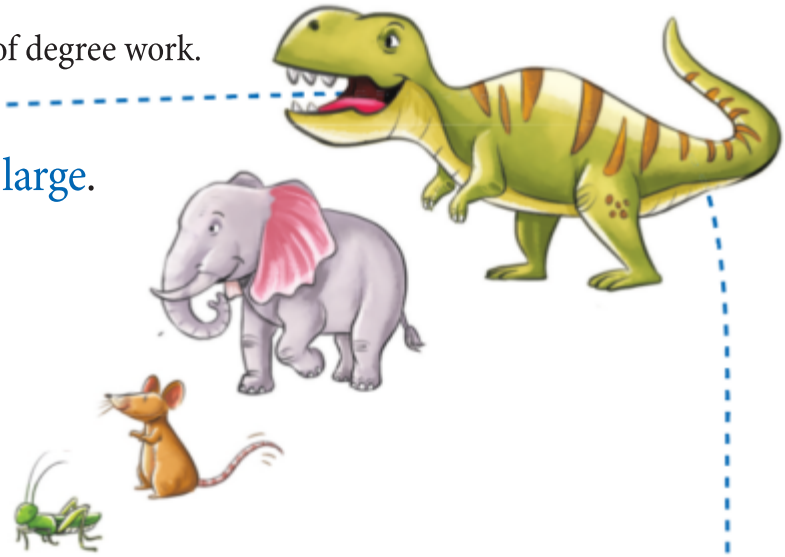
Adverbs of degree (or adverbs of quantity) tell us how much, to what extent or to what degree.

Read these set of sentences to see how adverbs of degree work.



1. Some dinosaurs were extremely large.

   Elephants are pretty large.

   Mice are quite small.

   Crickets are very small.

2. Grandpa Joe was old but he walked fast.
   Grandpa Joe was very old but he walked quite fast.

The words highlighted in pink in the set of sentences above are adverbs of degree which modify the adjectives highlighted in blue.

Here are some commonly used adverbs of degree.

almost	quite	extremely	very
too	hardly	nearly	completely

1. Choose adverbs from the box given above to fill in the blanks.

a. We can begin a game of chess in five minutes. I have _____ finished my homework.

b. It has been hot this summer, but today is an _____ hot day!

c. I like chocolates _____ much.

d. Sunil will not play football this evening. He is _____ tired to run around.

e. It is summer and there are _____ any flowers in the garden.

f. I am sorry. I _____ forgot to do my homework.

g. They are a good team, and although they lost the match, they played _____ well.

h. It is _____ impossible to get tickets for the concert.

2. Choose adverbs from the box on the previous page to expand the sentences given below. One has been done for you.

a. The music is loud.

The music is quite loud.

b. Newton has finished his experiment.

c. These bananas are ripe.

d. My grandmother is busy these days.

e. You are kind.

f. Jila is exhausted.

3. Make sentences of your own with the adverbs you have used used in the sentences above.

Spelling

In this section, we will:
- identify misspelt words and learn their correct spellings. (C-3.4)

Misspelt words

Cross out the misspelt words in the table given below.

assembly	escape	beleive	grinning	greatful	marwellous
assmblee	ecsape	believe	girnning	grateful	marvellous
assembely	escepe	belive	grenning	gratefull	marvellus

Write well

In this section, we will:
- learn how to write persuasively about an idea and support it. (C-3.2, 3.4)

Persuasive writing

Think of any idea in your head and then write about it in your notebook using the template on the next page. State what the idea is. Then give at least three reasons to show why it is a good idea and an important one. Support your reasons with examples and details. End by explaining why others should think about your idea too.

Persuasive Writing

Introduction (give your opinion): _____

_____

Reason why you think this: _____

_____

Elaborate (tell me more): _____

_____

Reason why you think this: _____

_____

Elaborate (tell me more): _____

_____

Reason why you think this: _____

_____

Elaborate (tell me more): _____

_____

Conclusion (restate your opinion): _____

_____

_____

Listen and speak well

In this section, we will:
- listen to information and then answer whether some statements are true or false.
- compose a jingle on healthy eating.

(C- 1.1, 1.2, 2.1)

1. Chocolates are a sweet treat but it is not healthy to eat too much of them. Listen to some interesting information about spinach that ranks among the world's healthiest vegetables. Then say whether the statements given below are true or false.
   a. The spinach plant has small, yellow flowers. ○
   b. The largest leaves are found at the top of the plant. ○
   c. Spinach was first grown in China. ○
   d. Today, Spain grows the most spinach. ○
   e. Spinach helps keep our bones, eyes and teeth healthy. ○
   f. The cartoon character Popeye helped make spinach popular. ○
2. In groups, compose a jingle on healthy eating and share it with the class.