

RIGHT NAMES, WRONG NAMES

A boy named Vir, meaning 'brave' in Hindi, may turn out to be a truly brave person but another boy named Vijay, meaning 'victory' in Hindi, may always be on the losing side. Some people have suitable names, while others do not. This is true of birds, insects and animals too!

A. Name these birds that have 'right' names.

1. I am a long-tailed songbird, found mainly in tropical America. I can mimic the calls and songs of other birds.

M _ _ C _ _ _ G
B I R D

2. I make my nest by weaving grass stems and other plant fibres, using my beak as a needle.

W _ _ A _ _ R
B I R D

3. I am a bird that can sing. Hence, my name.

S _ _ _ B I R D

B. Name these animals that have 'wrong' names!

1. I am a lizard but I have been named after a creature that lived long ago in the past.

K _ _ _ O _ _ _
D _ _ _ G O _ _

2. I am a tailless, South American rodent, typically kept as a pet. Though the first part of my name is a country in West Africa, I have nothing to do with that country.

G _ _ _ N _ _ _
P _ _ _

3. I am also known as a glow-worm, though I am not a worm. I am actually a winged beetle.

F _ _ _ F _ _ _

Find Out

... the names of two more creatures that have the 'right' names, and two creatures that do not.