

Warm up

Pair these pictures related to games and sports with the right words.

a.

b.

c.

punch

hat-trick

checkmate

dribble

smash

snatch

d.

e.

f.

Major Dhyan Chand Singh is considered to be one of the greatest hockey players of all time. He was part of the gold-winning Indian hockey team in three Olympic Games. Let us read more about him.

It was the final of the Punjab Indian Infantry Hockey Tournament in Jhelum, India. Dhyan Chand's side was losing the match by two goals. With only four minutes to go, his commanding officer called out, "Aage bado jawan, kuch toh karo, Dhyan!" (Go forward, soldier! Do something, Dhyan!) Dhyan Chand did go on to do something. He scored three goals in four minutes and led his team to victory.

Dhyan 'Chand' Singh was born in the state of Uttar Pradesh in India on 29 August 1905. His father, Subedar Sameshwar Dutt Singh, played hockey in the army. Dhyan Singh's family had to frequently move to the different places where his father was transferred on duty.

infantry: a branch of the army that fights on foot commanding officer: a senior officer who is in charge subedar: a rank in the Indian army transferred: moved from one place to another

His schooling suffered as a result and he stopped going to school after he completed class six. The family finally settled in a city called Jhansi where Dhyan's father got a small piece of land to build a house.

Young Dhyan did not show any special interest in sports, though he loved wrestling. In fact, his hockey career had quite an ordinary beginning. Dhyan and other youngsters used to cut a leaf of a date palm each and pull off the fronds. With a curve at its end, this palm leaf stem would become a makeshift hockey stick and they would play with a ball made from old rags.

In 1922, at the age of 17, Dhyan Singh joined the Indian Army. He was a sepoy of the 14th Punjab Regiment. While serving in the regiment, he came in contact with Subedar-Major Bhole Tiwari. Major Tiwari was very fond of hockey and was a good player himself. He recognized the talent in Dhyan Singh. He became Dhyan's guru and his influence laid the foundations of Dhyan's amazing sports career.

Briefly describe how Dhyan Singh and his friends played hockey as children.

Tiwari and Dhyan Chand had no fixed time to play. Dhyan Chand had to pay attention to army duties and could not find enough time to practise hockey during the day. So, he practised alone on the field at night. While they rested, his army mates could hear him hitting the ball for hours at a time. The legend of Dhyan Chand and his unbelievable feats on the hockey field had begun.

Why was Major Tiwari the right person to help Dhyan Singh?

Jhansi: a city in Uttar Pradesh fronds: long leaves divided into parts along the edge makeshift: something that is not permanent; only to be used for a short while as a temporary solution sepoy: (in the past) an Indian soldier serving under a British or European officer regiment: a large group of soldiers Subedar-Major: an army rank in India guru: an expert in a particular subject who gives advice laid the foundations: produced the basic structure feats: achievements

In 1926, Dhyan played his first match for India in New Zealand, beginning an international career that lasted 22 years. Dhyan Chand won gold medals at the Olympic Games in Amsterdam (1928), Los Angeles (1932) and, as captain, in Berlin (1936). He scored thirty-six goals in twelve Olympic matches—an average of three goals a match!

Dhyan Chand could control the ball so well with his hockey stick that his opponents thought there was some mischief at work. The Dutch broke his stick to check if there was a magnet inside; the Japanese thought there was glue on it. Dhyan Chand's magical stick work drew crowds to the hockey field. His skilled stick work and amazing ball control left fellow players and spectators awestruck. He earned the nickname 'Hockey Wizard'.

When he played at the Berlin Olympics, a German newspaper carried a banner headline:
"The Olympic complex now has a magic show too."

Which expression in the story refers to using unfair means for cheating?

Dhyan Chand believed in being the best. As a great sportsman, he never lost his temper on the field, but he certainly had the will to win. He played with excellent team spirit. He respected his teammates. Even though he was talented, he never boasted or showed off.

He played selflessly. If he found that one of his teammates was in a better position to score, he would immediately flick the ball to the well-placed player. "Hockey is a game of eleven players, not of one individual," he always said.

At the age of 51, Dhyan Chand retired from the army as a Major. The Government of India honoured him that year by awarding him the Padma Bhushan (India's third highest civilian honour).

Dhyan Chand breathed his last on 3 December 1979 in Delhi. A year after his death, the Indian Postal Service issued a commemorative stamp in his honour. The Dhyan Chand National Stadium in New Delhi is named in his honour.

His birth date, 29 August, is celebrated as the National Sports Day in India. The President gives away sports awards, such as the Rajiv Gandhi Khel Ratna, Arjuna Award and Dronacharya Award, on this day at the Rashtrapati Bhawan.

opponents: players in the opposite team awestruck: very impressed banner headline: a large headline, right across the top of the front page
Major: a rank in the Indian army civilian: a person who is not a member of the armed forces or the police commemorative stamp: a stamp in memory of or as a tribute to someone's great achievements Rashtrapati Bhawan: the official home of the President of India

In 2002, a Dhyan Chand Award for Lifetime Achievement in Sports and Games was introduced to honour those sportspersons who have not only contributed to sports through their performance but continue to contribute to the promotion of sports after retirement from an active sporting career.

How is Dhyan Chand Award different from other awards?

The opening sentence of Dhyan Chand's autobiography reads, "I am a common man and then a soldier. It has been my training from my very childhood to avoid limelight and publicity. I have chosen a profession where I have been taught to be a soldier, and nothing beyond that." But he was not so common after all. His skill was the stuff of myths and legends—there will never be another like him.

Dhyan Chand's brother Roop Singh, son Ashok Kumar, nephew Chandrasekhar and granddaughter Neha Singh too had the privilege of representing the national hockey team at the Olympics and various World Cup games. The Singh family has won five Olympic gold medals, one Olympic bronze, one World Cup gold, one World Cup silver and one World Cup bronze medal.

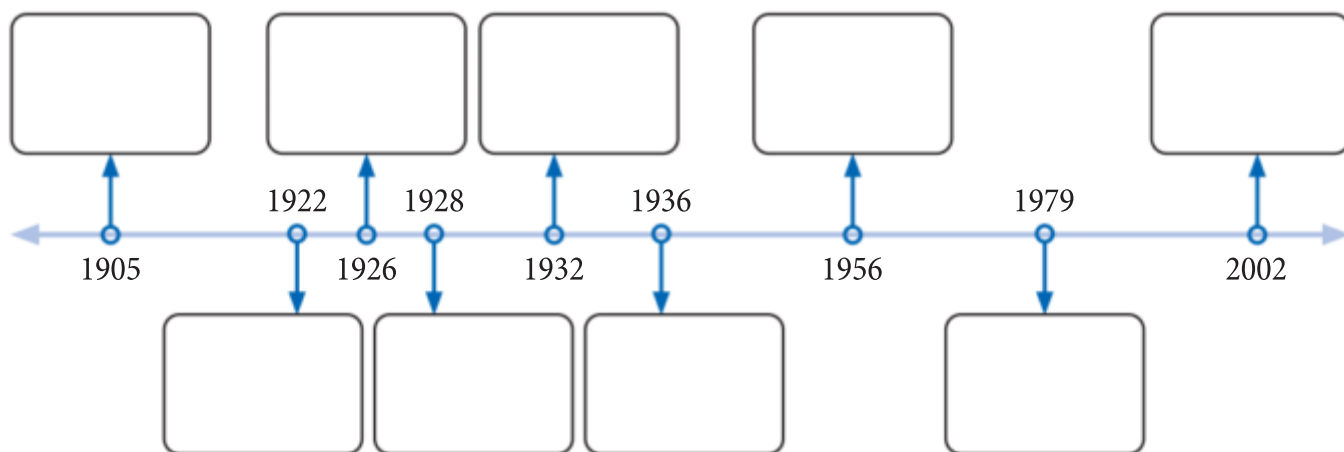

In this section, we will:

- create a timeline of a person's life based on the text.
- infer and interpret the main ideas of the text. (C-2.1, C-2.2, C-3.3)

Make connections

Map the story

Based on your reading of the story, create a timeline of Dhyan Chand's life using a template like the one given below.

limelight: focus of public attention

privilege: (here) honour

Deep dive

1. Dhyan and other youngsters used to cut a leaf of a date palm each and pull off the fronds.

RECALL

- a. Why did Dhyan and his friends take apart leaves of the date palm?

INFER

- b. Why was this beginning of Dhyan Chand's hockey career described as 'ordinary' in the story?

ANALYSE

- c. Why do you think the author included this piece of information about Dhyan Chand?

2. When he played at the Berlin Olympics, a German newspaper carried a banner headline: "The Olympic complex now has a magic show too."

RECALL

- a. To whom did the newspaper headline refer to?

INFER

- b. Was there really a magic show at the Olympic complex? Give reasons for your answer.

ANALYSE

- c. Dhyan was rightfully called the 'Hockey Wizard'. If you could choose a nickname for yourself, what would it be and why?

Read, reflect and write

1. Why did Dhyan Chand's schooling suffer?
2. What did Dhyan Chand's opponents think when they first saw his skill with the hockey stick?
3. After reading this chapter, what do you think are the essential qualities of a good sportsperson?

Integrate

1. If the Sun were the size of a beach ball, Jupiter would be a golf ball and the Earth would be a pea. Make cardboard cut-outs to illustrate the difference in sizes of balls used in various games.

2. A ball's size, weight, the surface on which it is being used and many other factors determine how high it can bounce.

By international rules, when a table tennis ball is dropped from the height of 30 centimetres, it should bounce at least 23 centimetres high. Study the balls used in various games—which ones bounce the highest and which ones the least? Record your findings.

In this section, we will:

- match the terms related to non-fiction texts with their descriptions.
- identify words related to a group of people in different contexts. (C-4.2)

Word wall

Literary words: non-fiction

Here are some words we use when we talk about non-fiction writing. Match the words with their descriptions.

1. table of contents	a. a list of difficult words in a text along with their meanings	☐
2. title page	b. charts that help to organize and compare information	☐
3. glossary	c. a list of important key words arranged alphabetically at the end of a book	☐
4. illustration	d. an extra piece of information that is given at the bottom of a page	☐
5. graph	e. the first page of a book that has the title and the author's name on it	☐
6. caption	f. text found under a photo or drawing that gives us more information about it	☐
7. footnote	g. a picture drawn by an artist to show what something looks like	☐
8. index	h. a list found at the beginning of the text, containing names of chapters or sections along with their page numbers	☐

Words denoting a group of people

Read the descriptions and fill in the missing letters of the words below. One has been done for you.

- a group of people watching a game or a match
- a group of people collected on a street
- a group of singers
- a group of disorderly people
- a group of dancers, artistes
- a group of actors

S P E C T A T O R S

_ R O _ _

C H _ _ _

_ O _

T _ _ U _ _

_ O M _ A _ _

Grammar time

Conjunctions of reason

Read the given sentence.

- He could not find enough time to practise hockey during the day, so he practised alone on the field at night.

In this sentence, so is a conjunction of reason.

Conjunctions are joining or linking words. They join two parts of a sentence.

ANCHOR CHART

Conjunctions of reason and their uses

Conjunctions of reason are used to link reasons and results.

- Used to show:
- why someone does something
 - why something has happened

Examples:

because

I went to the library because my teacher asked me to.

result ← reason

so

I was unwell, so I went home early.

reason → result/purpose

as

As the library was closed, we went to the park.

reason → result

since

Since he practised regularly, he played well.

reason → result

for

We finished all the food for we were very hungry.

(old fashioned, hardly used in speech)

result ← reason

Cause (Reason)

Result

1. Tick (✓) the right conjunction for each of the sentences given below.

- It was cold, (so/because) I put on my coat.
- (Since/So) he wasn't ready, we left without him.
- It was raining, (so/because) we played indoors.
- (So/As) he did not know the way, he asked for my help.
- We walked home (so/as) we had missed the last bus.
- I love visiting my grandparents (so/because) we do interesting things together.

2. Complete these sentences using your own ideas.

- I am happy because _____.
- Since it is late, _____.
- The teacher was pleased as the students _____.
- _____, so my friends _____.
- Ruby won the debate because _____
_____.
- Tarun wanted to watch the movie, so _____
_____.

Punctuation

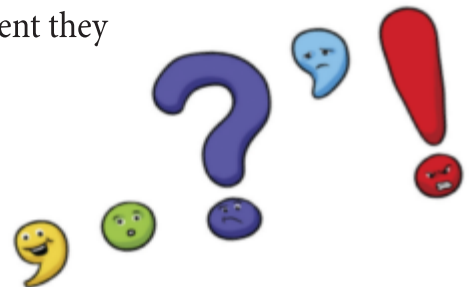

Revision

In this section, we will:

- revise the usage of various punctuation marks. (C-3.4)

Read the following sentences and punctuate them with full stops, commas, question marks, exclamation marks and apostrophe marks. Don't forget to use capitals letters where necessary.

- i am going to the market to buy two pencils one eraser and a ruler do you need anything
- watch out he shouted
- the children were making a lot of noise in the playground werent they
- the boy whom you met yesterday is our new neighbour
- alas we couldnt meet the cricketer
- havent you seen the new animated movie
- gary williams the famous chef visited mumbai last week
- anuradha and ankita my friends drove from pune to delhi
- our last trip to mussoorie was in 98
- amit sania rohit and sachin will represent our school in the inter-school competition

Write well

Biographical sketch

Write a short biographical sketch of a well-known person that you admire. Use the prompts given below to organize your content. Add photographs or illustrations to your piece of writing to make it more interesting.

A story of a person's life written by someone else, is called a biography.

WHO is the person?

WHEN and WHERE did the person live?

WHY is the person well known?

WHAT challenges did the person overcome?

HOW does the person inspire others?

Listen and speak well

In this section, we will:

- listen to sports commentaries and identify the sports.
- work in pairs to ask and answer questions about life experiences. (C-1.1, C-1.3, C-2.1, C-2.2)

- A play-by-play sports commentary is a real-time live commentary of a game using short, simple sentences. Listen to the play-by-play commentaries and identify the sport by numbering the images below.

- For writing a biography about a person, it is important to know about their life in proper detail. Imagine that you were writing a biography about your partner. Take turns to interview each other to know them better. Remember to ask questions about their upbringing, personality, achievements, role models and significant people in their life. You may take help from the questions listed below.
 - What is your earliest memory?
 - Where did you grow up? What was it like?
 - Describe the most memorable day of your life.
 - Name a person you admire. Which of their qualities do you like?
 - What are your hobbies and interests?
 - Do you have any favourite stories about school?